UNSW Medical Society's Conference Presentation Reimbursement Policy

This policy is written to outline the methods used to reimburse University of New South Wales medical students for their active participation in Academic Conferences and Educational Activities.

Recognising the importance of student participation in academic conferences and educational activities external to the UNSW Medical Society (herein MedSoc) is essential in achieving the Australia Medical Council required domains of Professionalism and Leadership in medical education. MedSoc chooses to use the funds provided annually by the Faculty of Medicine to subsidise student who seek to present at such events. MedSoc is responsible for assessing student applications within the scope of agreed-upon criteria developed with the Faculty. MedSoc's maximum yearly budget for Conference Funding is a variable range from $7,500 to $10,000, which includes the funding for pre-specified Australian Medical Students' Association (AMSA) events.

Pre-specified conferences and events organised by AMSA are considered separately from other events. For guidelines on funding for AMSA events, see Section 4.

1 Academic conferences and educational activities that are supported must meet the following three criteria:

- 1.1 Academic in nature.
- 1.2 Be of relevance and demonstrable benefit to both the applicant and other medical students.

- 1.3 The level of representation and participation in the event must exceed that of attendance, for example, presenting and/or actively representing UNSW or MedSoc.

General examples of activities worthy of MedSoc funding include oral or poster presentations at academic conferences. Activities that do not merit MedSoc funding include attending academic conferences where: the applicant is not presenting; and the content learnt at the conference is not of significant relevance to other medical students.

2 Requirements for delegates to provide to the MedSoc Secretary in return for reimbursement are as follows:

- 2.1 Application required to be made prospective to the conference.
- 2.2 Provide a receipt of the conference registration fees and additional receipts where applicable.
- 2.3 Provide the contact details of a supervisor or other referee qualified to comment on the event and their involvement.
- 2.4 A written blurb of 100 words with a photo to be submitted either during the conference period or within 5 days of the conference. This will be used for promotional purposes to be posted on the Medsoc Facebook page and/or Medsoc Website.
- 2.5 A written article with photos to be submitted to the MedSoc Publications website The Jugular.

3 Consideration for and amount of funding:

- 3.1 Will be reviewed fortnightly in MedSoc Executive meetings.
- 3.2 Will require reimbursement to be made retrospective to the conference at the end of that year, and only if the above criteria in sections 1 and 2 are met.
- 3.3 Will only cover conference registration and cannot be used for other personal expenses, including accommodation and flights, with the exception of 4.2.1..
- 3.4 Where the registration cost is less than or equal to $400 for domestic academic conferences and $700 for international academic conferences, they will be reimbursed $200 or $350, respectively, to a maximum of 100% reimbursement. Where the registration cost is greater than $400 for domestic academic conferences and $700 for international academic conferences, 50% of the registration cost will be reimbursed to a maximum amount of $600.
- 3.5 Where costs are also being reimbursed by other sources, MedSoc can offer funding to the extent that the total reimbursement from MedSoc and the external source combined matches the reimbursement amount that would have been offered under s3.4.
 - 3.5.1 MedSoc reserves the right to deny reimbursement to any applicant who does not provide full disclosure of other sources of conference funding, including but not limited to their supervisor, organisational grants or scholarships

3.6 Requires applicants to be aware that MedSoc's maximum annual budget for Conference Funding is a variable range from $7,500 to $10,000 at the discretion of the Faculty. Therefore, students must understand that 50% of their conference registration fee may not be covered if the cumulative cost of all successful applications made to MedSoc exceeds this $10,000 limit. In this event, MedSoc Executive reserves the right to determine the proportion of registration fee paid to each student.
